NEW PLANT. This is an architect's rendering of the new G.S.F. Corporation plant under construction in the Lowell Junction Industrial park. The $1,200,000 building is being built at the junction of Gillette and Lowell Junction Road. The Lawrence firm is expected to take occupancy by August 1.

New Industry For Town

Andover has a new industrial plant under construction in the Lowell Junction Industrial Park.

G.S.F. Corporation, located presently at 1 Mill St., Lawrence, has under construction a facility at the junction of Gillette Road and Lowell Junction Road, a plant estimated to cost $1,200,000.

The company, comparatively new to the area, is a converter and distributor of cushioning products.

Joseph A. Ippolito, president of the company said he was "very happy to be coming to Andover and that the employees were looking forward to the move."

He noted that the utilities for the area were adequate for the needs of the firm. Insurance officials have examined the area for fire flow and general water supply.

The town installed water and sewer lines to the area as well as new road construction when the Gillette Company announced its intentions of building there. The Small Business Administration recently authorized a loan of $350,000 to assist in the construction of the 35,000 square foot building. The site will occupy 11 acres. Building construction is expected to be completed in July with the company taking occupancy in August.

Mansour Construction Co. of Andover is the general contractor. The current operation in Lawrence occupies 42,000 square feet.

When the company moves to Andover it will become a manu-

Co-Operation Needed For Cleanup Of Town

Town Manager J. Maynard Austin has requested the co-operation of all townspeople with regard to spring cleanup.

Austin said this week that Public Works Director Robert McQuade has stated it physically impossible to clean up the town streets without the co-operation of the residents.

The two street sweepers and a rented sidewalk sweeper are in operation daily in an effort to clean up the sand spread on the streets during the winter months.

The schedule calls for the sweepers to be in the center of town, then out to the outlying areas.

Making the job difficult are residents who clean up yards and leave the debris by the curb after the sweeper has passed the street. The manager said it is impossible to make return trips, thus the litter remains at the curbsides.

Adding to the problem is the increased workload in the public works department at this time of the year. Annually problems arise in storm drain systems throughout the town. They become plugged up with winter debris and have to be cleaned.

There is also road work to be done such as patching.

Due to this the sweepers can only go over a street once, the manager pointed out.

Monday night Selectman Milton Greenberg agreed, noting that people in outlying areas are entitled to the service in view of their paying similar taxes as those in the center of town.

Tuesday, Austin reported Mc-

PREPARED. Lee Dodd, who proposed the Bike To Work day scheduled for next Wednesday, is shown with Robert M. Henderson, who is an avid cyclist, as they prepare to meet the challenge of the event. For the downtown businessman and others who bicycle in on Wednesday, there will be coffee waiting at the municipal parking lot to the rear of town hall where a bike rack will be provided.

Bike Day Wednesday

Exercise and cleaner air are the principals involved in a Bike-To-Work day planned for Wednesday, April 21.

Workers and shoppers in the downtown area are being urged to leave their cars at home and bike to work on that day.

A bicycle rack is being constructed at the Regional Vocational school and will be installed in the parking lot at the rear of town hall.

For those who participate there will be coffee waiting through the courtesy of Raymond Fuller of the Andover Co-Op.

The idea was initiated by Lee Dodd who suggested the idea to the Ecology committee of the Andover Chamber of Commerce.

The committee endorsed the idea and encouraged participation.

Main theme of the day is to

A letter to the editor in last week's TOWNSMAN signed by seven high school students calling for better enforcement of the school's rules has focussed community interest on the high school's discipline this week.

The letter has brought reporters to the school to check the impressions of students, administration and faculty for agreement and disagreement, as well as to look for signs of impending chaos, mentioned in the letter. It also brought some grief to the young letter writers when readers did not get out of their letter exactly what they thought they had put into it. A lesson in communications, as School Committeeman Frank Hill told them Tuesday night. It's happened to the school committee too.

Mike Jacobsen, the principal writer, told the TOWNSMAN he was amazed when people thought they wanted more rules, or an iron-fisted rule, or that they did not like the high school and its administration.

"We all like the high school. It's a great school and we're proud to go there. Some people think we want more rules. We don't. We're for the open campus. But unless the present rules are better enforced and kept, we'll never be able to have open campus or if we did we'd lose it in a week, because lots of people wouldn't observe it's restrictions."

The letter signers, Michael Jacobsen '72, Steve Jenkins '72, Margaret Romeo '71, Candee

Mrs. Barbara Smith

Staff

If you don't know the name of the staff member you are speaking with at Memorial Hall Library, the chances are it's Mrs. Smith. We have two Smiths and one Smyth on the staff at this time. Today's write-up is about Mrs. Barbara Smith. Barbara started working at the library last fall; she is a part-time worker now, but is definitely planning to get a degree in Library Science as soon as her family situation allows. Her husband's name is Richard G. Smith; the couple live at 20 Chester St., Ballardvale with their two small children, Lauren, aged 4, and Steven, 1 and a half. Mr. Smith is the chairman of the Masconomet Regional High School English Department. He approves of Barbara's employment and acts as babysitter while she works evenings and Saturdays in the Children's Room.

Barbara Smith comes to librarianship from the teaching profession. She received her B.S. in Education at Lowell State College and she was a kindergarten teacher in the Andover School system before the children were born. She also had experience teaching in England in a U.S. Army dependent school there. In fact she helped put her husband through college during this period in England. The Smiths did a lot of travelling in Europe while they were overseas, and they still do a lot here in this country as a family. The entire family enjoys camping, especially in the White Mountains and on the Cape. They are also skiers in the winter and gardeners in the summertime.

Earth Day

At the Olde Andover Village parking lot there will be a great deal happening, Saturday, April 17, Earth Day. Memorial Hall Library is sponsoring guided tours of the town's open lands on that day. If it is a fair day we encourage you to get outdoors and walk through your reservation lands. The Andover Village Improvement Society and the Andover Conservation Commission are providing the guides to take you over the trails and Boy Scouts will be at the parking areas to help you park your car. A schedule of the tours and the time of leaving on each tour is given here for your convenience:

Corps Of Engineers To Devise Plan For River

The U.S. Corps of Engineers is beginning work to devise a comprehensive pollution control plan that will best meet the combined needs of the entire Merrimack River Basin, Congressman F. Bradford Morse has announced.

Morse, who first proposed the Merrimack Basin as an ideal location for a large-scale federal "demonstration" pollution control project in 1966, said he was deeply gratified by the Corps' selection of the Merrimack for its study. "I have long urged both a comprehensive, coordinated basin approach and the application of systems analysis techniques as the most effective and efficient way to solve the pollution problems of the Merrimack," Morse stated. "I am greatly pleased and encouraged to know that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will be using these techniques to identify a regional plan that will effectively clean up the Merrimack Basin."

In a letter sent to the Fifth District Congressman last week, the Chief of Engineers called pollution control in the Merrimack "a high priority need," and reaffirmed the potential for developing effective alternative choices for solving the pollution problem. Their schedule calls for completing a $210,000 wastewater management feasibility study for the Merrimack River Basin this summer. The fiscal 1972 budget contains an additional $1,490,000 to carry out a follow-up survey on the most promising solutions.

Morse said that the Corps of Engineers will also be giving attention to systems that would remove virtually all wastes from the water. He was assured that State and local agencies concerned with pollution control will be full partners in the planning.

The Massachusetts Congressman called the attention of the Corps to the recently-approved pollution control project being undertaken by the Lowell Technological Institute Research Foundation, and was informed that the Corps intends to coordinate this and other relevant Merrimack pollution-control studies in their examination.

The Corps will also be working in coordination with the Water Quality Office of the Environmental Protection Agency, and will relate their study to the waste treatment facilities construction grant program in order not to delay ongoing efforts to meet water quality standards.

Morse, who offered the Corps his full support and assistance, will be regularly advised of the project's progress.

Personnel Changes In Schools

The school committee has approved the following resignations: Mrs. Ann Isenberg, learning disability tutor, effective at the end of the year. Mrs. Nancy Jacobson, East Junior High librarian, effective April 2, 1971; Mrs. Virginia Strohle, high school teacher's aide, effective April 2, 1971. Mr. Paul Surface, East Jr. High music, effective at the end of the school year.

Also approved was the transfer of Maurice Ferris from Physical Education to Grade 2, at the Doherty School. Mr. Ferris has a teacher's certificate as well as physical education qualification.

The following new appointments were approved: Mrs. Elaine Doucette, Doherty Teacher Aide, effective March 15, 1971 for 35 hours per week, at $2.25 per hour. Mrs. Delight Durant, West Elementary Teacher Aide, effective March 15, 1971 for 7 hours per week at $2.25 per hour.

Mrs. Josephine Pasquale, West Elementary Teacher Aide, effective March 15, 1971 for 7 hours per week at $2.25 per hour.

Mr. Walter Marcille, Doherty Permanent Substitute, Physical Education instructor, effective March 15, 1971 at an annual salary of $7,200.

Mr. Peter Anderson, East Jr. High Spring Track Coach, at a stipend of $487.50.

At the same meeting, Mrs. Sandra Hawkes, high school English instructor, brought several of her students to explain a project that involved collecting old family recipes and handwork instructions for a simple booklet. The project grew, the students explained, into the actual publication of a booklet of great interest and satisfaction to the class, who had met and surmounted various problems in the production, with the help of the Industrial Arts, Arts and Crafts and Homemaking departments.

Chairman William King commented that the committee enthusiastically supports projects of this nature, and Dr. Daniel Frishman suggested the possibility of following up with more projects.

To Present Original Play

Challenge House in Methuen, will present "The Challenge," on April 18 at 8 p.m. in the Tenney Memorial High school auditorium.

The play is an original presentation, written, directed and performed by members of Challenge House a rehabilitation center.

The play deals with the problems of drug abuse.

Tickets will be available at the door.

To Attend State Camp On Conservation

David Sweetser, 40 Wild Rose Drive, a sophomore at Andover High school has been chosen to attend the Massachusetts Junior Conservation Camp in Westboro, June 27 to July 10 under the sponsorship of the Andover Garden Club.

Conservation Committee chairman, Mrs. Lyman Pope, Jr., was aided in selecting David with the help of Jerome Lake, Andover High school biology teacher, and Arthur Danforth, head of the Andover High school science department.

David is interested in the whole field of conservation and wants to find out more about it. He has done a science project on water pollution. His other interests are baseball, basketball and football.

Studies show weather is the worst enemy of good highways. Soaking rains, frost, heat, and rapid temperature changes break up highways -- even those where traffic is light!

Tibor Szasz

Pianist To Present Concert

A piano concert by Tibor Szasz will be the first of several performing events of the sixth annual Festival of Arts celebration at the Unitarian Universalist Church of Andover.

Mr. Szasz will play on Wednesday evening, April 21 at 8 p.m. in the church auditorium. He is a native of Hungary and is currently studying at the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston.

He was born in Kolozsvár, Transylvania in 1948. He began to study the piano at the age of 4 1/2. At the age of 11, after a student competition, he transferred to the conservatory of Kolozsvár. He studied with Elisa Ciolan. At the age of 14, he debuted with the philharmonic orchestra of Kolozsvár under the direction of Antonin Ciolan. In 1965 he won the 6th prize of G. Enesco competition. In 1968, he won the 2nd prize in the Sofia competition, and also had his first recital in West Germany. In 1970, he came to the United States with a scholarship at the New England Conservatory of Music and is currently a candidate for the artist degree studying with Russell Sherman.

European critical reviews of his work sparkle with accolade. A West German newspaper said:

"... astonishing, refined art of playing the piano. His virtuoso mastery of the keyboard combined with a perfection and magnificent musicianship places him without doubt at the pinnacle of talent coming out of the iron curtain countries."

Radio Bucharest reported: "... authentic artistic achievements, amazing technical precision, grafted on a vibrant musical thinking... plays... with brilliant virtuosity which would be envied by the aces of the keyboard."

Since coming to America, he has performed on radio and T.V. in this area and has made a number of concert performances.

This Festival of Arts opens on Friday evening, April 16 with a reception for the artist, patrons and members of the Festival Committee. More than 100 entries are on display. The show opens for public viewing on Saturday 2 - 9 p.m. and continues for various hours during the next two weeks.

Other special events will highlight the show, a theatre performance of "No Exit" by the Quannapowitt Players of Reading on April 24 and a modern dance concert by the Marblehead Dance Workshop on April 25. Tickets for all special events are available at the church.

Lecture Series To Conclude

Rev. Cornelius J. van der Poel, C.S.Sp., master of science in education and pastoral counseling, will be the speaker at the final lecture of the current Christian Life Lecture Series held at the Christian Formation Center, Andover, on Sunday evening, April 18, at 8 p.m. His topic will be "Being Christian vs. Being Human."

He has authored several books in this field, including "God's Love in Human Language," and has contributed to various journals and publications.

Rev. van der Poel was born and educated in the Netherlands and is presently a teacher of Moral Theology at College of Notre Dame, Wilton, Conn.

Co-Op Plan Offered At College

Plans have been completed for the introduction of co-operative education at Bryant McIntosh Junior College in Lawrence for the academic year beginning in September, according to John A. Palmucci, executive vice president at Bryant McIntosh.

In a statement today, Mr. Palmucci said he believed the Lawrence junior college was the only one in the nation to offer the associate degree in applied science under the co-operative system, whereby students alternate 12 weeks of study and work in a two-and-a-half year plan.

Palmucci recommended the co-op plan for the local junior college not only because it enables students to partially earn their education costs at a time of skyrocketing tuition, but because it equips graduating students with a full year's experience in their chosen field, in addition to a college degree.

He feels the combination is an indispensable aid for students seeking employment in today's competitive economy.

"Despite increasing unemployment trends, the demand for business and secretarial graduates remains high, this year. This has been evidenced by the number of college recruiters from surrounding areas, and particularly from Boston, who are coming to Lawrence to hire our June graduates for accounting, computer operations and secretarial positions," Palmucci reported.

The two divisions will alternate 12-week quarters of work and study to complete associate degree requirements in a two-and-a-half year period.

Numerous business firms in the Merrimack Valley area have endorsed the co-op plan at Bryant McIntosh and have indicated that they will employ co-op students.

Under the co-op system, two students are assigned to a company to fill a position on a year-round basis. While one student is on the job, his alternate attends school.

The co-op program will be offered in three major areas of study at the junior college: secretarial science, business administration, and aviation administration.

Bryant McIntosh Junior College began classes last fall as a private, non-profit institution, chartered by the state to grant the two-year associate degree in applied science.

Applications will be received through the summer for the new co-op program.

DISCIPLINE

Thomas '72, David Clarke '72, Ann Gerraughty '72 and Edith DeBolt '72, were invited to air their convictions at Tuesday night's meeting. Here they stuck to their guns, on the main issue, and also clarified it: that a small minority of students who cannot accept responsibility are endangering the rights of the rest of the students by abusing the rights, and often getting away with it because the present rules, are not enforced to the degree they should be.

Before Principal Philip Wormwood introduced the students, Superintendent Seifert stated that the basic content is valid -- an attempt to say, "If we're going to have rules, let's enforce them," and the committee was sympathetic. Dr. Richard A. Katz questioned, (as many students have questioned) why the letter writers chose this vehicle to solve the problem rather than taking it up with the Faculty-Student Senate.

Ann Gerraughty replied that they had wanted to get a parental response, interest the public and get ideas, although she admitted that she would prefer rules devised by the senate than by the community at large. David Clarke brought down the house with his honesty on how hard it is to bring up something, in the Senate, which may alienate other students. His remark, when Dr. Katz asked if he didn't alienate some students by the letter was "Yes, but in the Senate, they're looking at you when you do it!"

The committee asked the seven students for constructive ideas on student discipline. Dr. Seifert posed what he called the real dilemma: what do you do when a student doesn't care about rules, and the parents don't care about them either? He said this is a tiny minority in Andover, but it is present, and constitutes one of the difficult problems the high school must face, with a few of its behavioral problems. What do you do?

Edith DeBolt doubted that suspension from school was effective, perhaps internal suspension was best -- having to come to school but stay in one room. Not so, said high school discipline chief Charles Adams, since the students enjoy the companionship of their classmates part of the day, at lunch. Both Adams and Wormwood suggest that regular suspension has the greatest effect from the parents point of view, since it involves them more, they lose the baby-sitting service of school, and the student misses the company of his peers. Committeeman Dr. Frank Griggs wanted to know if suspension works. Sometimes it's effective, said Wormwood, and it also has some deterrent effect on other borderline students; but Chairman William King theorized that this might be a sign that it would be an effective deterrent.

High school math teacher William Vickers, the elected head of the Faculty-Student Senate, was present, and commented that when two reporters questioned the Senate Tuesday on conditions at the high school, the students demanded comparison with other high schools. "They began using the collective pronoun, and I saw developing there more sense of pride in 'our school' than I have noted for some time."

So much for the letter writers' cordial meeting with the school committee.

Issues which appeared in their letter last week, but which they did not pursue at the meeting were their skeptical reaction to two new measures in the high school's rules revision, announced two weeks ago, and in effect since March 3. One is the responsibility students now have to pass through the corridors from one authorized place to another without carrying a written permission slip from a teacher to prove the legitimacy of their errand. A second is the administration's giving each teacher the responsibility for handling the discipline if a student cuts a class he teaches. The students also did not emphasize at the school committee meeting, another of their letter's main issues: uneven enforcement of administration rules by some teachers.

The letter had called the students' new corridor responsibility "freedom to roam the halls," had doubted the faculty's ability to handle class-cutting discipline and said "some teachers enforce the administration rules, some enforce their own, and still others don't enforce anything."

The letter writers also doubted that the administration would begin a get-tough policy on enforcement at this date in the year.

Mike Jacobsen told the TOWNSMAN that his letter was written the day after the rules revision was announced, but that since then he has been surprised to find that dropping the written permission slips has not had any bad effects he can see, and he thinks it's going to work. He also said the administration's reasons for the shift to faculty personally handling discipline of students who cut their class had not been clear, and you have to wait and see if it works, and if more even enforcement of rules by faculty comes about.

Now back to the high school. The Curious Citizen may wonder what the rules were which began the year, what and why revisions were made, what seems to be going on now at the high school, and what people there think about it.

This meant a lot of time at the high school this week, to see the actual rules and revision, talk with administrators and teachers, and more long talk sessions that various students dropped in and out of, between classes.

Last fall, the high school opened with a new statement of rules and regulations, prefaced by remarks by Principal Philip Wormwood. Among them:

"Rules and regulations are frequently considered as denying liberties to individuals. But another way to consider them is that if they are just and reasonable they permit liberties that one could not have without them. A simple example of this is the rule that one must drive on the right hand side of the road. Without this restriction, traffic would be so chaotic that the present freedoms and use that we enjoy on our roads would be impossible. In like manner, school programs can be carried out only in a controlled or orderly situation."

"Mutual responsibility" was the keynote of the school's September rules. The administration again offered honor study programs as alternatives to the traditional study halls where the student must be in the same monitored room each day at a certain desk. Honor study programs meant a student could choose where to spend his free periods - library, lab, cafeteria lounge, or in a room working on a project with other students - as long as he went there and stayed there.

But the September rules also reminded students that class attendance was compulsory, and set penalties for class cutting, truancy, fighting, willful damage of school property, or leaving school bounds except on an authorized project. Penalties were also set for unexcused absences and tardiness, and there was the traditional rule that no student could be in the corridor or lavatories without a teacher's written permission.

The September rules statement also pointed out that "It is understood that our rules need to be reviewed constantly; that in our rapidly changing times, that which might be considered appropriate in the beginning of the year might not be at the end."

Prophetic words! On March 31, a revision of the rules went into effect, and "Realistic Responsibility" is now the watchword. Few of the rules are changed, but the methods of dealing with infractions have been reconsidered, as well as the penalties, with an eye to sharpening their effectiveness.

Stricter enforcement procedures are instituted "because not all students can handle their responsibilities." (It was the announcement of this revision, two weeks ago, which triggered the seven students' frustrated letter. Yet it looks as though both the administration and letter signers are after stricter enforcement of rules. Looks like a communication problem. Perhaps the students are not the only ones who write something down with one thing in mind, and find that people read something entirely different into it!)

In striving for realistic responsibility, asks the principal, how much of the responsibility do you change, do you take away from the majority, because of the minority who cannot handle it?

The administration's philosophy is to give every student the chance to prove that he is responsible, with honor study programs, snack bar, and now a new responsibility - to be able to pass through the halls from one authorized place to another without a written permission slip. The realistic part is (1) to reinstate traditional study halls "for those who fail to meet the reasonable obligations and responsibilities of the honor system that is part of the open or free period concept in students programs," (2) to provide more general faculty supervision of school and grounds, mainly to prevent some students leaving the school, and (3) to set stiffer penalties for leaving school, truancy, fighting in school and vandalism.

Not all of the staff agree with the philosophy. Social studies teacher Dick Collins says he thinks the most effective way is to give these responsibilities, as privileges, only to students who already have demonstrated their maturity, since students mature at different rates, and some students have amply demonstrated that they are irresponsible. However Collins, who is a member of a faculty committee that Wormwood drew on for advice, feels strongly that even if teachers don't completely agree, they should carry out and enforce administrative policy. Differences in the faculty are healthy, says Collins, but what isn't healthy is when there are differences in whether you carry out the school policy.

Why was the March rules revision necessary?

The Curious Citizen finds that Andover High has been plagued this winter with its brand of the same absenteeism or truancy, that is hitting other high schools in Merrimack Valley, and beyond. Some in the Valley have absenteeism over 10 percent, while some urban high schools have a third of

Editorial Comment

Co-Operation

Residents must recognize the broad expanse of Andover as reflected in the problems facing the department of public works.

The street sweepers have been actively pursuing the task of cleaning up the tons of sand spread on the streets to keep them safe for vehicular traffic during the winter months.

But many residents are also cleaning up their yards of winter litter and leaving remnants at the curb to be picked up by the two sweepers currently covering the town.

It is an impossible task with the workload facing the DPW at this time of year, to pass every street almost daily.

We realize that problems have beset the town through the anti-burning law, thus the litter which has accumulated over the winter months cannot be reduced to ashes.

But this is a problem we must all live with in this era of concern over ecology and pollution.

To demand that the town care for the problem appears to be economically not feasible.

It would require additional men and machinery to care for the problem.

There are presently two street sweepers and some rented sidewalk sweepers working throughout the town.

To properly do what is being requested, would require additional manpower as well as costly machinery.

Tax savings can be realized by taking the litter from around the homes personally, thus allowing the town crews to properly cover the hundreds of miles of streets.

It is only fair to all taxpayers of the community to have a visit from the street sweeping machinery.

Good Thought

Selectman Milton Greenberg this week proposed a meeting of several town boards to co-ordinate purchasing.

The town manager charter exempts at least two departments from centralized purchasing, the library and the school department, the latter having direction over the purchase of textbooks.

Greenberg's proposal is to place all purchasing in the hands of one man, including the purchase of textbooks for the schools.

The idea has merit.

Particularly in view of his thoughts that at least a five per cent annual savings can be realized if all purchasing is centralized.

No doubt, the schools will probably be reluctant to giving up their autonomy.

But, we feel, there will be no loss to their selection of books and materials to maintain the quality of the school system.

So, too, the library would more than likely lose little in relinquishing authority to a central agency.

Centralized purchasing can most certainly provide an economical atmosphere here.

If, as Selectman Greenberg states, such a practice is not being implemented, then steps should be taken to improve the economic climate.

Any savings that can be realized would be most beneficial.

The Doctors

At the recently concluded town meeting, a proposal for rezoning a section of land off Haverhill Street was rejected for use by doctors in the community.

The proposal was to provide a professional building for Andover and North Andover doctors to provide needed medical services for Greater Lawrence residents.

The proposal was rejected.

This week, Town Manager J. Maynard Austin suggested to the selectmen that the Industrial Commission be asked to seek a site for this professional building.

The selectmen have decided to study the matter.

We think that the Industrial Commission and interested citizens should apply themselves toward finding a proper site for such a medical building, in order to retain these services within the community.

The proposal, as presented, would have increased services within the town.

Medical science is now complex.

We live in an age of specialization.

What was offered was a complex in which referrals could be made from one specializing physician to another. Also to be offered were laboratories and X-Ray facilities.

The professional building, in which all these services can be combined and offered to the general public would appear to be a help in this day and age.

We would hope that the Industrial Commission and the selectmen would be attentive to these needs and work toward retaining these professional services in Andover.

The selectmen have received several telephone calls regarding the issue.

This should be enough incentive to spur their attention to the matter.

The general public is asking for the particular services offered.

It is not actually an isolated case.

The need has been shown.

Now, the town must find a spot for a professional building.

The sooner, the better.

What Our Readers Say

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN:

It was extremely disappointing to see Article 62, banning disposable bottles and cans, defeated at town meeting last week. It is just as disappointing that the beer and soft drink industries, who themselves conceived and developed such an efficient system of distribution and re-use of containers, are fighting so hard to abandon their system now, when we have finally begun to realize how great a problem solid waste disposal is. For this reason Article 62 began with beer and soft drinks. Another solution must follow for the other containers.

45 percent of the voters felt so strongly about the error of the one-way bottle that they voted to prohibit its sale. Despite this, an area check of virtually any retail outlet shows that there are either no returnable bottles at all or at most, a few straggling cartons of cola. It is now time for consumers to demand more beverages in returnable bottles and to have those demands satisfied.

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN:

It is gratifying to concerned parents to learn, that the current generation is just as upset and worried about the incompetence and apathy of the Andover school administration as we members of the "Establishment" are.

Mrs. Cole, in her statement after failure to gain re-election, called the high school "wild and woolly." Reflect, Mrs. Cole, on two things:

1. How did the high school get to be the "wild and woolly" snake-pit it is, with a friendly pusher at the intersection of each corridor?

2. Why cannot the Andover School committee, and the administration of the Andover High school, cope with the situation?

In answering these two questions, reflect on why you failed to gain re-election, and the number of votes you did receive. No, Virginia, there is not a Santa Claus. Could it be, Mrs. Cole, that the voters, taxpayers, and concerned parents of the Town of Andover, are sick to death of the kind of thinking that has been expounded by a few former School Committee members? Do you think we may be dismayed by the lack of:

1. A dress code of any kind, or even the semblance thereof?

2. A general deterioration in discipline in the Andover School system, most noticeably in the high school?

3. A significant lack of competence in the administration of the high school in particular, and the school system in general?

4. A tiredness on the part of the voters and taxpayers of this town to blithely enter into every fad proposed by the school

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN:

Among the lessons given at the recent town meeting is found the concepts and precepts of the commercial interests as exposed by their spokesmen and approved by their following during discussion of the non-returnable bottle Article. To say the least, somebody's image needs improvement.

It appears to be the Commercial Interests' opinion that their customers are slob (sic) once they have left their money and left the premises. But a worse expose, by their own words, is their opinion that their business is not related

The bottlers and retailers who opposed the article spoke of co-operation in recycling. We are now looking to them for leadership in accomplishing this end. In the coming weeks we hope to see:

1. A variety of beers and soft drinks in returnable bottles prominently displayed.

2. Bottle and can collection centers in Andover in convenient locations at supermarket parking lots, at the dump, etc.

3. A real commitment of town officials, retailers, and citizens to get glass, metal and paper into collection points for recycling.

The suggestion that those who care can drive ten or twenty miles to drop trash at recycling centers is discrimination of the worst sort. Since the bottlers, retailers, and consumers share the blame, they should now join forces to create a better environment. The purpose of Article 62 was not only to help preserve our part of the earth for us and our children, but to preserve it for everyone.

administration and/or the School Committee?

5. It is apparent from the outcome of the recent election and the vote against the Doherty School addition, that Andover taxpayers are not concerned with show-place schools that attract visitors from faraway places; we want quality education for our children now, in Andover, regardless of what Florida, or California, or even the next town thinks of the outward appearance of our schools.

A response to Mrs. Cole's earlier statement has recently come from a group of the responsible students who still remain in the Andover School system. Their appeals make a lot more sense to us than the statements of some deposited members of the Andover School Committee.

There are still God knows why, dedicated and responsible teachers in the Andover School system. Their concern and interest has been quite effectively balked by those in positions of trust.

As long-time residents of Andover, one of us a graduate of Puncard High school, we have been concerned by a continuing decrease in academic standing of the Andover High school, but most especially by the nearly complete deterioration of the high school in the last two years. We now face a catastrophic drug problem, both in junior and senior high schools, and a complete lack of discipline in the senior high school traceable only to administration of that school.

What bitter seeds we sow, Mrs. Cole, and what shall we reap as crops?

to the problem of roadside garbage: "You don't have the right to ask any retailer to be a garbage collector," said a commercial spokesman. And this same speaker relied upon the proposition that it would be discrimination to make a start at solving this community problem by seeking to discourage a source of community garbage. If this "logic" were reliable, then it would be unfair and incorrect to require factory chimneys not to smoke, factory waste not to be dumped into water, or automobiles not to contaminate air.

The fishing season is about to open and we are informed by the state Division of Fisheries and Game, that the Shawsheen River has been stocked with trout.

A good sign.

With river cleanups and a concern by citizenry in towns through which the river passes, the state has seen fit to stock the river once again.

For some time, pollution in the stream kept authorities from providing fish for the sportsmen.

No doubt there will be plenty of interest on opening day.

The fate of the Bruins has certainly caused some palpitations lately.

With everyone figuring the team with superstar Bobby Orr, going all the way easily, based on their season's performance, came the stunning realization that the Montreal Canadiens had not been reading the press clippings.

Suddenly the Bruins were in trouble due to an Ivy League rookie goaltender named Ken Dryden.

With a little luck, however, hopefully the Stanley Cup will still remain in Boston.

The traditional Easter Parade didn't seem to be quite what it used to be this year.

Naturally, the weather had a little bit to do with it, what with the raw feeling in the air.

But the main noticeable missing ingredient was the women's hats.

Even in churches, the bonnets were missing.

Time was when the Easter Bonnet was the most important part of the wardrobe, but times have changed apparently.

Just a reminder that the semi-annual motor vehicle inspection time is here again.

Motorists have until May 15 to meet the standards set by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles for safe vehicles.

The registrar has asked that inspections be made early in order to be sure cars are operable after May 15. Shortage of parts and other problems could keep motor vehicles off the roads after the final date.

A further reminder that those with the numeral four in their registration plates, must have the registration validated before the end of the month.

From the Merrimack Valley Newsletter of Western Electric:

One Iowa customer was more than slightly disturbed by the $40 to $50 long distance charges that his wife incurred every month... when the lady returned home one day she found a pay phone in place of her usual marathon mouthpiece, and both her extension phones removed... noticing that there was a little change, she dialed her husband who may just have found the answer to Lady Long Lines.

A feature attraction of the 57th annual open house program of the Essex Agricultural and Technical Institute, May 1 and 2, will be the 4-H Horse Club Field Demonstration Day.

4-H horse club members will demonstrate the preparation for and performance of the principal classes seen at a 4-H horse show.

An abbreviated 4-H fitting and showing contest with commentary explaining how the judges assess each contestant and animal, and each class will be staged. Other events will include equitation classes, pony and horse games, and other aspects of horse management.

During the day on May 1, older 4-H members will be on hand to describe their projects, and explain how to care for their horse and equipment. The field day will provide first year 4-H horse club members, those planning to buy a horse, and other interested persons a fine opportunity to find out what goes on at a horse show.

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN: Thru your column may I make a most sincere and honest criticism of people in Andover planning on April 24 a trip to Washington, D.C. to participate in a Peace Rally. Said trip sponsored by the Andover Peace Action Coordinating Committee.

My criticism being in the form of a question. Question - Does this same committee understand we have an internal war going on as well as an external war?

In face of that fact - it just would be great if these same folks would donate the price of the trip, $18.00, to a worthwhile cause. In so doing it would help solve problems right here in Andover and in our state of Massachusetts.

At this point I would like to get personal if I may in my remarks. Quite a number in both my husband's and my family have served in all wars up to the present time. Two are now serving - one in the Marines - one in the Air Force. I have never heard a word of dissent. They were proud to serve their country the United States of America. They do not like wars any more than you and I. They were serving to try to attain the right kind of peace for all mankind. They served honorably because they felt it their duty to their country the United States of America.

President Nixon is dedicated to do his duty and is doing it quite well.

Let us in Andover be dedicated to our duty as citizens of our great country the United States of America. Our duty as I see it is to work for the best interests of the United States of America and the entire world.

Doing our duty as dedicated citizens of the U.S.A. would help to obtain a lasting peace for all mankind the world over. Thank you.

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN:

The Steven Douglas debate had nothing on Andover's marathon town meeting debates. However, after all is said and done, reason prevailed. Congratulations to all who attended the meetings. A word of praise for our chairman of the Finance Committee, Mr. Greenberg, also to School Committee member Griggs and to the vigilante, Mr. Coderre, who beat down the school superintendent's pet project, the computer system. Mr. Seifert should not count his chickens before they are hatched. I'd suggest to him to keep his eyes on the stars but his feet on the ground, and that goes for the educational courses in our schools. Let's forget the world of science and learn more of the world of reality.

LAND'S IMPORTANCE

The importance of land in the future will reflect three factors.

1. What we want.
2. The extent to which we create additional machines, factories, and buildings. Transportation and similar tools, which facilitate production, will play a part.
3. Our ability to devise new techniques for increasing output.

What we want will depend upon how many of us there will be. Our tastes, with respect to what we consume, will be another consideration.

Looking at the past, we see the shape of coming events. A century ago, there were 31 million people in the United States. Today, there are over 200 million. Population experts predict that our numbers will exceed 300 million in the year 2000.

On the basis of numbers alone, our wants will increase one-third. This assumes no change in quantities of goods and services the individual desires.

Flowers . . .

. . . can make an important contribution to the traditional funeral service. Not only do they denote respect for the deceased, but flowers can be sort of a personal messenger of sympathy and understanding to survivors. Their presence tells the immediate family that their friends are thinking of them and sharing their sorrow during their bereavement.

While many customs and fashions have undergone changes over the years, the use of flowers at funerals has endured. Evidence of floral tributes have been found in excavated tombs dating as far back as ancient Egypt.

their students out, the principal reports from his area meetings with other principals. Andover High's absenteeism has so far stayed under 10 percent. Wormwood calls it a common perplexing problem for all schools. Class cutting has also risen.

Another reason appears to be the lack of sufficient supervision or enforcement, and the fact that different teachers' handling of class cutting can vary according to their philosophies, which leads to confusion and some inequities.

The administration acknowledges in its new rule revision that "We are presently aware that students cut some classes more than others because of a difference of attitude and action on the part of teachers. Partly because of this, class cutting has become a major school problem, and only through a united effort upon the part of the total staff to take effective action can this problem be controlled."

The Curious Citizen learned that Andover High has had a rather unique situation - students who are truants and at the same time are attending classes. The administration confirmed that some truant students have nevertheless been appearing in the school for certain classes. It is supposed that the new tighter grounds supervision assigned to faculty members will either keep the students in the school, or keep the truants out.

The revision changes few of the students' rules, Wormwood says, but it shares more responsibility and it does two important things, both on the same theme of responsibility.

It brings the teacher in more by giving him (or her) the responsibility not just for reporting cuts from their class, but for the student's discipline in an instance where a student has cut his class.

The purpose is to remove discipline for class cuts from the more impersonal handling of all by the central office, and to return each to the context where the offense occurs - in the relationship between the teacher and the student. The administration's part will be to work with teachers to see that all cuts are dealt with on this level. Only if the teacher is unsuccessful in curtailing a student's class cutting will the administration step in.

The rules revision also brings the parents in more, since the discipline now involves the parents sooner, and more directly.

The Curious Citizen wonders if enforcement has been stricter since the March 31 enactment of the revised rules. "You'd better believe it," has been the consensus, although there are instances, as always, of some abuses. One girl said she had always gone out for lunch at MacDonalds, but now she doesn't, "because I know I'd get caught," she says cheerfully.

Mrs. Marion Davis, the advisor of the "Decisions Unlimited" drug education group, says the enforcement has increased, and she has noted a change in tone in both faculty and students. Says another student, "There's still a little smoking in the basements, but not near as much."

Other students thought that the letter writers were "not terribly onto what's going on in the school, - there's enforcement now."

The word responsibility keeps cropping up with students; although most agreed, even reluctantly, that controls are needed for irresponsible students; they still stressed responsibility. Mark Murabito said, "Responsibility has to come from the students. Not all the students accept it, but still it's got to come from the students. You have to get people to act from responsibility, not out of fear, even though you have to have controls for those who can't accept responsibility. It's a test; whether you're willing to accept responsibility to control yourself, or let what's around you - control you. Last year I was fighting everything. Then I smartened up. This year's different for me."

On division in the faculty, one high school student said; "Sure, it's there. But most students don't mind differences of opinion, they're everywhere. It can be good. One thing this school has that most schools don't. Every kid in it has someone on the faculty that he can relate to."

The Curious Citizen came away with the impression that a large number of students agree that the rules needed tightening up - including some students who have taken advantage of a few rules. "If you're going to have rules, you have to have control, because of the people who don't keep them."

The Curious Citizen heard no complaints about the stiffer penalties, as long as the administration's philosophy is to give each student a chance to prove he (or she) is responsible, until he demonstrates that he is unable or unwilling to accept the responsibility.

Everyone questioned by the Curious Citizen at the high school agreed that enforcement has tightened up since the new rules revision went into effect and teachers assumed extra supervisory duties in and around the school buildings; they also agree that this has cut down on the abuse of rules in school.

As for the effectiveness of teachers' handling of class cutting, and more unanimity of rules enforcement by the teachers, that is something that time has to prove.

ACEO Meets Tuesday For Discussion

In these days when employment opportunities are scarce, how are minority groups faring in the job market? Is the old tradition for black workers of "last hired, first fired" changing? Can a nation with an explosive rise in public welfare clients afford the cost of joblessness often forced on minorities by discrimination?

These and other questions will be considered at a public meeting on April 20 at 8 p.m. in South Church sponsored by the Andover Citizens for Equal Opportunity. The featured speaker will be David Withan, field representative of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination, who will discuss the work of the commission in opening new possibilities to black, Puerto Rican, Oriental, and other groups and protecting their chances for fair advancement through persuasion, negotiation, and legal action. The need for public action against discrimination is underscored by statistics indicating that the unemployment rate for men from minority groups is nearly double that of the national average for ages above 25 and triple for the age bracket from 17 to 25. America's newest protesters against job discrimination -- women -- find themselves with a median income approximately 60 percent of that for men. Black and Puerto Rican women especially are being forced into menial, low-paying jobs.

Quade was a bit discouraged as the residents continued to line streets with trash from yard cleanups.

Austin said he was disturbed to see a pile of debris in front of a home in the center of town on Easter Sunday morning.

The manager emphasized that henceforth the policy is to be coverage of a street only once. He said the townspeople would have to co-operate and that the litter cleaned up from yards would have to be taken to the dump by the individuals.

Music To Our Ears

By Edward P. Grigoli

What is Jazz: and what is commercial (pop) music?

Since the term Jazz is basically indefinable, it is necessary for one to realize that Jazz covers a multitude of sounds of which Blues, Dixieland, Boogie-Woogie, Ragtime, Swing and Be-Bop are considered the "classics." Therefore it is safe to say that Jazz may be defined as a highly rhythmic, emotional music with a high dependency on self-expression through improvisation. It is also safe to say that Jazz descended from imported slaves and their descendants, and that it is basically true that Jazz is the music of the American Negro.

By Commercial "pop" Music we mean music which has or is receiving wide acceptance from the public, which includes folk music, American dance music, the Big Band Era, the American Musical Theater, and the contemporary music of the last twenty-five years.

Miss Dobbie Transfers To Shawsheen

The Andover school administration is honoring West Elementary School Principal Isabel Dobbie's request for an administrative transfer to a smaller school in the district. She will become the principal of the Shawsheen School.

Anthony Frulla, Shawsheen School principal, has requested an opportunity to work in a larger school setting, and he will become principal of the West School.

The transfer will take place gradually, beginning after the April vacation, in order to give both principals an opportunity to be fully involved in their new school's plans for next September. In other words, Assistant Superintendent Vaughn I. Clapp explained, both schools can expect to start seeing both principals.

The transfers were decided upon in response to Miss Dobbie's letter to the superintendent, in which she stated:

"I have enjoyed the challenge of opening the new West Elementary School and have been pleased with the positive developments which have taken place. It has been personally satisfying to see the growth my pupils have made both academically and socially. However, after much serious reflection and personal evaluation, I sincerely feel that my administrative style is better suited to a smaller school operation where I can have closer contact with children, teachers, and parents. Therefore, I am requesting that if an opportunity arises for my transfer to a smaller school setting, I would appreciate your consideration of my request."

Miss Dobbie has been principal of the West School since it opened in 1952 with seven classrooms. She has presided over its various metamorphoses culminating with

Returns Pour In To IRS

The Internal Revenue Service Center on Lowell Street is prepared to receive 3.5 million Federal income tax returns during the next few days, Director Frank Browitt announced this morning.

As the deadline of April 15 neared the IRS center received an increasing amount of mail daily. Tuesday 475,000 returns were received. Wednesday morning 650,000 more, and 800,000 are expected Thursday. Saturday the Center will receive 2.5 million returns, Director Browitt reports.

The returns come from every city and town in New England and New York. The Receipt and Control Branch where the returns are first handled will have 1600 employees at work during the week end.

The total number of employees at work during this peak period reaches 5000 persons, many of whom are Andover residents who with 3000 others serve as seasonal employees. While the deadline of April 15 always brings in millions of returns, the Center has been processing returns since January. A total of 5,865,632 have already been processed. Of this number 4,872,823 were for refunds that the completion of the 23 classroom West School Addition, bringing the total West School population to 924. The Shawsheen School is a 12-room school, plus kindergarten, with 333 pupils. Principal Frulla came to the Andover system this past summer from a doctoral program at the State University of New York in Albany, after a wide variety of administrative experience.
